It's sad that it's all about being black.Q: How to control how jQuery is executing in a specific on my page? We have a jQuery function that works fine on our main web site but when we add it to another web site in the same server it doesn't work. It's like the function is being called, but not properly. How can I set up the jQuery for that web site so it behaves the same as on the other web site? A: It's possible that jQuery is just being loaded from a different location, or in a different name. Try to use the following on the file with the function in it: That way, it will make sure to use the most recent version of jQuery that you have available. Q: React hook will not fire once returned from function I am new to react hooks and i am creating an application where the user can change the title of the home page dynamically. To do this i am passing an input from the parent to a function in my child component and updating the title to that input. As the title is part of the function of the component itself the function will not return the value back to the parent component. I have attached the code for reference. import React, { useState, useEffect } from'react'; import { Container, Row, Col, Label, Button } from'react-bootstrap 82157476af
